GRAMMATICAL STRUCTURES IV

LESSONS 39-44

AUGUST 1981

DEFENSE LANGUAGE INSTITUTE FOREIGN LANGUAGE CENTER

PREFACE

The four volumes entitled "Grammatical Structures" consist of 44 lessons and are designed to teach the basic structures of the German language. All of the lessons were taken entirely from the DLIFLC Basic Structure Series, with the exception of particular adaptations and additional material being included to make them almost self-contained for self-paced study or classroom instruction. The grammatical features contained in the lessons are sequenced according to difficulty, i.e. from simple to difficult, so that similar grammatical features are not necessarily placed in the same or consecutive lessons.

GUIDELINES

Use of this book does not depend upon the availability of the recorded tapes from the DLIFLC Basic Structure Series. (Note: Cassette tapes are available from the Basic Structure Series.) If, however, use of the tape recordings is desired, you may easily adapt the tapes to the Grammatical Structures lessons. You must be aware, though, that the word "lesson" is substituted for "module" and the lesson number is one higher than the original module number (e.g. Lesson 1 is the Introductory Module and Lesson 2 is Module 1).

In order to focus maximum attention on the structural features themselves, the vocabulary used in the lessons has been restricted to a small number of high frequency words, most of which should already be quite familiar to you. Whenever additional words are introduced, the English meaning will be shown.

Each lesson usually includes two or more related sections indicated by a section topic. The end of each section is identified on the recording by two beeps. At the end of a given section, you may, if you wish, repeat that section for additional study and practice. In addition, it is important to note that if you are looking for a particular grammatical point, a comprehensive index can be found following the text at the end of each volume of the Grammatical Structures portion of FLAMRIC.

OBJECTIVE

Upon satisfactory completion of a lesson and quiz, you should be able to easily and accurately speak and write correct German sentences embodying the structural features taught.

Future Tense Using Modal Auxiliaries
(Double Infinitive)

In this Lesson, you will learn the formation of the future tense in sentences which contain a modal auxiliary (or a verb used like a modal) in addition to the main verb. The future tense in subordinate clauses containing a modal or a verb used like a modal will also be presented.

The Lesson is divided into the following sections:

1. Future Tense in Sentences Containing Modal Auxiliaries or Verbs Used Like Modals
2. Future Tense Expressing Present Probability in Sentences Containing Modal Auxiliaries
3. Future Tense in Subordinate Clauses with True Modal Auxiliaries
4. Future Tense in Subordinate Clauses with Verbs Used Like Modals

Future Tense in Sentences Containing

Modal Auxiliaries or Verbs Used Like Modals

In the preceding Lesson, you learned to form and use the present perfect and past perfect tenses in sentences containing both a main verb and a modal auxiliary verb. These constructions involve the so-called "double infinitive" pattern, as shown in the present perfect tense example below:

Franz hat zur Schule gehen wollen.

(Franz wanted to go to school.)

In both the present perfect and past perfect tenses, the auxiliary verb is a conjugated form of haben (present tense for present perfect; imperfect tense for past perfect). The future tense in double infinitive constructions (as well as in simple future tense sentences without a modal auxiliary) uses some other auxiliary verb. What is this verb?

The future tense uses a conjugated form of the auxiliary verb

werden,

both in sentences without modals and in "double infinitive" sentences containing a main verb and a modal.

In future tense sentences, in what tense is the conjugated form of werden?

In future tense sentences, werden is used in the appropriately conjugated present tense form.

From the preceding Lesson, you are already familiar with double infinitive word order. The formation of the future tense in double infinitive constructions is thus in large part a matter of using the present tense forms of werden, rather than haben, within sentence patterns you have already practiced at length.

On the basis of the preceding discussion, you should now be able to restate the present perfect tense example sentence:

Franz hat zur Schule gehen wollen.

(Franz wanted to go to school.)

in the future tense, in other words, to say the German equivalent of:

Franz will want to go to school.

When you hear the signal, say the future tense sentence.

The correct answer is:

Franz wird zur Schule gehen wollen.

(Franz will want to go to school.)

The following exercises offer a brief review of the present tense forms of werden. Listen to and repeat each of the forms below:

ich werde

du wirst

er [sie, es] wird

wir werden

ihr werdet

sie werden

Sie werden

Study these forms as required.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate present tense forms of werden.

- 1 du _____
- 2 wir _____
- 3 sie [pl] _____
- 4 ihr _____
- 5 er _____
- 6 Sie _____
- 7 ich _____

CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

Say the appropriate present tense forms of werden.

1. Sie
2. wir
3. ich
4. sie [sing.]
5. du
6. ihr
7. sie [pl.]

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

NOTES

- _____ 1. wirst
- _____ 2. werden
- _____ 3. werden
- _____ 4. werdet
- _____ 5. wird
- _____ 6. werden
- _____ 7. werde

START THE TAPE.

NOTES

Based on the present tense sentences shown, fill in the blanks with the appropriate form of werden and the infinitive of the modal auxiliary to make a complete sentence in the future tense. Notice also the English translation of the future tense sentence.

1. Wir können mit dem Unterricht beginnen.

Wir _____ mit dem Unterricht beginnen

(We will be able to begin with the lesson.)

2. Ich muss Hans zum Spielplatz bringen.

Ich _____ Hans zum Spielplatz bringen

_____.
(I will have to take Hans to the playground.)

3. Grossmutter will mir das Geld schenken.

Grossmutter _____ mir das Geld schenken

(Grandmother will want to give me the money.)

4. Sie müssen heute zu Fuss in die Schule gehen.

Sie _____ heute zu Fuss in die Schule gehen _____.

(They will have to walk to school today.)

5. Hier darf man nicht rauchen.

Hier _____ man nicht rauchen _____.
(People won't be permitted to smoke here.)

6. Das Mädchen will Kellnerin werden.

Das Mädchen _____ Kellnerin werden

_____.
(The girl will want to become a waitress.)

7. Ich muss morgen meinen Bruder abholen.

Ich _____ morgen meinen Bruder abholen

(I will have to pick up my brother tomorrow.)

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

_____ 1. werden können

_____ 2. werde müssen

_____ 3. wird wollen

_____ 4. werden müssen

_____ 5. wird dürfen

_____ 6. wird wollen

_____ 7. werde müssen

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences in the future tense, based on the present tense sentences shown. Note also the English translation of the future tense sentences.

1. Hans muss am Sonntag arbeiten.

Hans am Sonntag arbeiten
(Hans will have to work on Sunday.)

2. Meyers wollen mit uns nach Italien fahren.

Meyers mit uns nach Italien fahren
(The Meyers will want to go with us to Italy.)

3. Die Kinder dürfen morgen ins Kino gehen.

Die Kinder morgen ins Kino gehen
(The children will be permitted to go to the movies tomorrow.)

4. Ich kann leider nächste Woche nicht kommen.

Ich leider nächste Woche nicht kommen
(Unfortunately I will not be able to come next week.)

5. Ihr müsst ihm helfen.

Ihr ihm helfen
(You will have to help him.)

6. Peter soll seinen Freund zum Flugplatz bringen.

Peter seinen Freund zum Flugplatz bringen
(Peter will be expected to take his friend to the airport.)

In reflexive constructions, the appropriate reflexive pronoun appears either immediately following the conjugated form of werden or, in inverted word order, immediately following the noun or pronoun subject. For example:

Sie werden sich ein Haus kaufen wollen.

(They will want to buy a house.)

Werden sie sich ein Haus kaufen wollen?

(Will they want to buy a house?)

However, if a pronoun other than the reflexive pronoun is present the familiar sequence-of-object rule must apply. For example:

Sie werden es sich kaufen wollen.

(They will want to buy it.)

Write complete German sentences in the future tense on the basis of the given English. Use the German words provided, changing their form and order as required.

1. Hans / Köln / sich ansehen / werden / wollen /

(Hans will want to sightsee in Cologne.)

2. Peter / sich entschuldigen / müssen / werden / bei Professor Schulz

(Peter will have to apologize to Professor Schulz.)

3. Meyers / einen neuen Mercedes / werden / wollen / sich kaufen

(The Meyers will want to buy a new Mercedes.)

4. Die Kinder / sich anziehen / können / werden

(The children will be able to get dressed.)

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Hans wird sich Köln ansehen wollen.

2. Peter wird sich bei Professor Schulz entschuldigen müssen.

3. Meyers werden sich einen neuen Mercedes kaufen wollen.

4. Die Kinder werden sich anziehen können.

Say complete German sentences, using the elements shown. Begin each sentence with the underlined word.

1. Vater / müssen / einen neuen Mantel / sich kaufen / werden

(Father will have to buy himself a new coat.)

2. er / sich einschenken / noch ein Glas Bier / wollen / werden

(He will want to pour himself another glass of beer.)

3. sie / können / in Berlin / sich zurechtfinden / werden

(Will they be able to find their way around Berlin?)

4. Peter / wollen / werden / sich aufschreiben / die Adresse

(Peter will want to write down the address.)

5. Die Kinder / dürfen / sich holen / etwas zu essen / werden

(The children will be allowed to get themselves something to eat.)

As introduced in Lesson 18, a number of verbs that are most often used as main verbs can occasionally be used as modal auxiliaries. Except when they are used in subordinate clauses (to be dealt with in section 4), the "verbs-used-like-modals" follow the same pattern in the future tense as do the regular modals.

The following exercises include sentences using sehen, hören, helfen, lassen, and sich lassen in a modal capacity. The word order pattern you practiced earlier in this section continues to apply.

Write complete sentences based on the given English, using the elements shown. Begin your sentence with the underlined element. Note that this will in some cases require inverted word order.

1. ihn / wir / kommen / nach Hause / hören /
werden

(We will hear him come home.)

2. Herr Meyer / bauen / sich lassen / werden / ein Haus

(Mr. Meyer will have a house built for himself.)

3. ihr / auf dem Flugplatz / werden / sehen /
viele Flugzeuge / starten und landen

(You will see many airplanes take off and land at the airport.)

4. reparieren / meinen Sportwagen / werden / du / helfen / mir

_____?

(Will you help me repair my sports car?)

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

NOTES

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Wir werden ihn nach Hause kommen hören.

2. Herr Meyer wird sich ein Haus bauen lassen.

3. Auf dem Flugplatz werdet ihr viele Flugzeuge starten und landen sehen.

4. Wirst du mir meinen Sportwagen reparieren helfen?

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences based on the given elements. Begin your sentence with the underlined element.

1. sehen / die Kinder / werden / bald / nach Hause / du / kommen

(You will see the children come home soon.)

2. helfen / uns / werden / er / finden / den Ball
(Will he help us find the ball?)

3. Meyers / werden / ihr Dach / lassen / reparieren
(The Meyers will have their roof repaired.)

4. ihr / singen / werden / hören / morgen abend / ihn
(Will you hear him sing tomorrow night?)

NOTES

The following exercises review all of the material you have practiced in this section. Write complete sentences using the given elements, beginning your sentence with the underlined word. Note that reflexive verbs, verbs used like modals, and inverted word order are all represented.

1. werden / sich kaufen / einen wärmeren Mantel / er / müssen

(He will have to buy a warmer coat.)

2. helfen / ich / werden / meinen Freunden / die / Adresse / finden

(I will help my friends find the address.)

3. morgen / werden / Hans und Inge / wollen / mitkommen

(Will Hans and Inge want to come along tomorrow?)

4. ansehen / den Film / nächste Woche / wir / werden / uns / können

(We will be able to see the movie next week.)

5. werden / sich gut amüsieren / können / ihr / dort

(You will be able to amuse yourselves there.)

6. wollen / morgen / abreisen / Meyers / werden

(The Meyers will want to leave tomorrow.)

7. dürfen / besuchen / Peter / sie / werden

(They will be allowed to visit Peter.)

8. hören / werden / bestimmt / ihn / wir / kommen / ins Haus

(We'll certainly hear him come into the house.)

9. Vater / morgen / uns / in die Stadt / fahren / müssen / werden

(Tomorrow father will have to drive us downtown.)
TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Er wird sich einen wärmeren Mantel kaufen müssen.

2. Ich werde meinen Freunden die Adresse finden helfen.

3. Werden Hans und Inge morgen mitkommen wollen?

4. Wir werden uns nächste Woche den Film ansehen können.

5. Ihr werdet euch dort gut amüsieren können.

6. Meyers werden morgen abreisen wollen.

7. Sie werden Peter besuchen dürfen.

8. Wir werden ihn bestimmt ins Haus kommen hören.

9. Morgen wird Vater uns in die Stadt fahren müssen.

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences based on the given elements, beginning your sentence with the underlined element.

1. werden / die amerikanischen Schüler / sich ansehen / die alten Kirchen / wollen / in Köln
(The American students will want to have a look at the old churches of Cologne.)
2. kommen / nicht / Heidi / können / werden / morgen
(Heidi will not be able to come tomorrow.)
3. sich lassen / Franz / werden / kurz schneiden / die Haare
(Franz will have his hair cut short.)
4. vor nächster Woche / wir / das Auto / können / werden / abholen / nicht
(We will not be able to pick up the car before next week.)
5. dürfen / du / eine Flasche Wein / noch / werden / sich bestellen
(You will be allowed to order another bottle of wine.)

6. ihr / schreiben / ihm / können / werden / sofort
(Will you be able to write to him right away?)
7. Herr Meyer / nächste Woche / sich lassen / werden / ein Haus auf dem Lande / zeigen (Next week Mr. Meyer will have a house in the country shown to him.)
8. dürfen / Maria und Ingrid / werden / dieses Jahr / nicht / fahren / nach Italien
(Will Maria and Ingrid not be allowed to go to Italy this year?)
9. besuchen / meine Freunde / müssen / in München / ich / werden
(I will have to visit my friends in Munich.)

NOTES

Section 2

Future Tense Expressing Present Probability in Sentences Containing Modal Auxiliaries

You will remember from Lesson 35 that the future tense in German is often used to indicate an assumption or conjecture on the part of a speaker who wishes to express the present probability of some action or state. For example:

Karl wird nach Hause gehen.

might be translated:

Karl is probably going home.

if the context of the conversation indicates that the speaker is making an assumption or conjecture about Karl's destination. As you recall, such a probability utterance often contains adverbs such as wohl and wahrscheinlich (probably), sicher (most likely, undoubtedly, [certainly]) and vielleicht (perhaps). The adverb follows the conjugated form of werden, unless a pronoun takes precedence. Study the following two sentences:

Karl wird wohl nach Hause gehen.

(Karl is probably going home.)

Karl wird ihn wohl nach Hause bringen.

(Karl is probably taking him home.)

A similar meaning can be conveyed in future tense sentences containing a modal auxiliary. For example:

Karl wird wohl nach Hause gehen wollen.

(Karl will probably want to go home.)

Karl wird ihn wohl nach Hause bringen wollen.

(Karl will probably want to take him home.)

In reflexive constructions, the adverb follows the reflexive pronoun, or a sequence of two pronouns if the construction calls for it:

Karl wird sich wohl ein Bier holen wollen.

(Karl will probably want to get a beer for himself.)

Karl wird es sich wohl holen wollen.

(Karl will probably want to get one [it] for himself.)

In the following few exercises, some of these probability adverbs will be included to indicate an assumption or conjecture on the speaker's part. Remember that the above discussion also applies to verbs that are used like modals.

Write complete German sentences in the future tense on the basis of the given English. Use the German words provided, changing their form and order as required. Note that all sentences include wohl or another probability adverb. Begin your sentence with the underlined element.

1. Offizier / in Berlin / sich zurechtfinden / werden / können / wohl

(The officer will probably be able to find his way around Berlin.)

2. sie / heute abend / leider / ausgehen / nicht / werden / dürfen / wohl

(Unfortunately, they will probably not be permitted to go out tonight.)

3. sie / heute abend / früh ins Bett / gehen /
werden / wollen / vielleicht

(Perhaps she will want to go to bed early tonight.)

4. Schüler / Film / neu / aus Deutschland / sich ansehen / werden / müssen / wohl

(The students will probably have to see the new movie from Germany.)

NOTES

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Der Offizier wird sich wohl in Berlin zurechtfinden können.

2. Leider werden sie wohl heute abend nicht ausgehen dürfen.

3. Heute abend wird sie vielleicht früh ins Bett gehen wollen.

4. Die Schüler werden sich wohl den neuen Film aus Deutschland ansehen müssen.

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences, using the elements shown. Begin each sentence with the underlined word.

1. Meyers / Rechnung / diesen Monat / bezahlen / nicht / werden / können / wohl

(The Meyers will probably not be able to pay the bill this month.)

2. Offizier / vom Bahnhof / abholen / werden / sich lassen / sicher

(The officer will undoubtedly have himself be picked up at the railroad station.)

3. Inge / heute abend / dich / anrufen / werden / wollen / vielleicht

(Perhaps Inge will want to call you tonight.)

4. du / Plan / dein / fürs Wochenende / aufgeben / werden / müssen / wahrscheinlich

(You will probably have to give up your plan for the weekend.)

Section 3

Future Tense in Subordinate

Clauses with True Modal Auxiliaries

In Lesson 38, you learned the present perfect tense pattern for modal auxiliaries accompanying main verbs in subordinate clauses. An example is the following sentence:

Ich bin sicher, dass er mit Peter hat kommen wollen.
(I am sure that he wanted to come with Peter.)

You probably remember that the transposed word order which is associated with subordinate clauses in general (conjugated verb moving to the end of the clause) does NOT apply in "double infinitive" situations. Instead, a sort of "incomplete" transposition takes place, in which the conjugated verb is placed immediately in front of the first infinitive, rather than at the end of the clause. Thus, in the example sentence above, the conjugated form of the auxiliary verb haben (hat) is placed immediately before the first infinitive, kommen.

Ich bin sicher, dass er mit Peter hat kommen wollen.

The future tense in subordinate clauses containing a modal auxiliary and main verb follows the same pattern of "incomplete transposition." Indeed, the only departure from the pattern you practiced in the preceding Lesson is the use of the appropriate conjugated form of werden rather than of haben. With this in mind, how would you say the German equivalent of:

I am sure that he will want to come with Peter.

You would say:

Ich bin sicher, dass er mit Peter wird kommen wollen.

Listen to and repeat each of the following sentences, noticing the English translation and the position of the conjugated present tense form of werden.

1. Hans fragte uns, ob wir ihn werden abholen wollen.
(Hans asked us whether we will want to pick him up.)
2. Ingrid sagte uns, dass sie morgen abend wird ausgehen dürfen.
(Ingrid told us that she will be allowed to go out tomorrow night.)
3. Ich möchte wissen, ob sie das Haus werden verkaufen können.
(I would like to know whether they'll be able to sell the house.)
4. Peter schrieb uns, dass er am Sonntag nicht wird kommen können.
(Peter wrote us that he will not be able to come on Sunday.)
5. Ich glaube, dass er seinen Wagen wird waschen müssen.
(I think that he will have to wash his car.)

NOTES

6. Weisst du schon, wann du wirst zurückkommen können?

(Do you already know when you will be able to come back?)

7. Frau Meyer fragte uns, wie lange wir in München werden bleiben wollen.

(Mrs. Meyer asked us how long we will want to stay in Munich.)

Fill in the blanks to produce a complete German sentence on the basis of the given English. Remember the "incomplete transposition" of the auxiliary verb in these sentences.

1. Peter told us that he will have to come by train.
(use müssen)

Peter sagte uns, dass _____
_____.

2. Professor Schulz thinks that the students will want to see the museum. (use sich ansehen and wollen)

Professor Schulz glaubt, dass _____

3. We don't know whether we will be able to go to Germany. (use können)

Wir wissen nicht, ob _____
_____.

4. I think that we will be expected to answer him.
(use sollen)

Ich glaube, dass _____
_____.

5. They don't know yet, whether they'll be allowed to go to the beach. (use dürfen)

Sie wissen noch nicht, ob _____

NOTES

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. er mit dem Zug wird kommen müssen.

2. die Schüler sich das Museum werden ansehen wollen.

3. wir nach Deutschland werden fahren können.

4. wir ihm werden antworten sollen.

5. sie an den Strand werden gehen dürfen.

6. Karl seinen Sportwagen wird verkaufen wollen.

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences, supplying the subordinate clause in the future tense.

1. I know that the Meyers will not want to sell their beautiful picture.

Ich weiss, dass Meyers ihr schönes Bild nicht

2. The students are asking how long they will be able to stay in Germany.

Die Schüler fragen, wie lange sie in Deutschland

3. We don't know yet whether we will be allowed to see that movie.

Wir wissen noch nicht, ob wir uns diesen Film

6. Professor Schulz asked us whether we'll want to have a look at the old church.

Professor Schulz fragte uns, ob wir uns die alte Kirche

7. Peter thinks that he will have to pick up his classmate.

Peter glaubt, dass er seinen Klassenkameraden

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate form of the auxiliary verb werden. Note that this form appears at the end of the subordinate clause. The regular verb used in a modal capacity is underlined in each instance.

1. Peter hat uns gesagt, dass er die Koffer tragen helfen
(Peter told us that he will help carry the suitcases.)
2. Wir wissen noch nicht, ob wir uns zum Flugplatz bringen lassen
(We don't know yet whether we will have ourselves taken to the airport.)
3. Wir freuen uns, dass wir morgen abend Ihre Tochter singen hören
(We are glad that we will hear your daughter sing tomorrow night.)
4. Er weiss noch nicht, ob er einen Arzt kommen lassen
(He doesn't know yet whether he will have a doctor come.)
5. Ich möchte wissen, ob Vater uns nach Hause kommen hören
(I would like to know whether father will hear us come home.)
6. Ich bin sicher, dass wir Karl bald abfahren sehen
(I am sure that we will see Karl depart soon.)

Say complete German sentences, supplying the subordinate clause in the future tense.

1. Do you know whether Professor Schulz will have these books sent from America?
Wissen Sie, ob Professor Schulz sich
2. We told our neighbor that we will help him repair the roof.
Wir haben unserem Nachbarn gesagt, dass
3. Father, tell Mr. Müller that I will have his new suit picked up!
Vater, sag Herrn Müller, dass
4. We don't know yet whether we'll see Peter play soccer tomorrow.
Wir wissen noch nicht, ob
5. I hope that you [fam. sing.] will hear the children come home.
Ich hoffe, dass

NOTES

Complete the German sentences below, supplying the subordinate clause on the basis of the given English. Use the elements shown, changing word form and order as required.

1. We told our neighbors that we will help them work in the garden tomorrow.
ihnen / helfen / werden / morgen / wir / arbeiten / im Garten
Wir haben unseren Nachbarn gesagt, dass _____
_____.
2. Ingrid wrote us that she'll hear the famous Callas sing in Munich.

LESSON 40

Subjunctive Constructions with "Werden";
Subjunctive of "Sein", "Haben", and Modals

This is the first of five Lessons on the forms and uses of the subjunctive mood in German. The first three of these Lessons deal with the present subjunctive, and the last two with the past subjunctive. The major emphasis of this Lesson is on the use of the subjunctive mood in "if - then" contrary-to-fact statements. Later portions of the Lesson deal with other applications of the subjunctive mood including, for example, its use in expressing polite requests.

The Lesson is divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction to Contrary-to-Fact Statements; Subjunctive of "Werden" and the Conditional in "Then" Clauses
2. Subjunctive of Haben and Sein in "If" Clauses
3. Contrary-to-Fact Statements Containing Modal Auxiliaries
4. Some Other Uses of the Subjunctive

Introduction to Contrary-to-Fact Statements;
Subjunctive of "Werden" and the Conditional in
"Then" Clauses

In this and the following four Lessons, you will learn the forms and major uses of verbs in the subjunctive mood. One of the most important uses of the subjunctive mood is to express contrary-to-fact statements which consist of a condition and a conclusion clause. Since neither of these terms is likely to be familiar to you at this point, we will first discuss their meaning, using English examples, before introducing the German forms involved.

Contrary-to-fact statements may be conveniently thought of as sentences which present an "if-then" situation. For example:

If he wants a bicycle, I will buy him one.

In this sentence, the "if" condition is stated in the first clause:

If he wants a bicycle,

The "then" conclusion is stated in the second clause:

.... I will buy him one.

The conclusion expressed in the "then" clause will not take place unless the condition expressed in the "if" clause is met. Other examples of conditional sentences in English are shown below:

1. If he has enough money, he'll go to the movies tonight.
2. If it rains, the show will be held indoors.
3. If I take German, I will be in Miss Müller's class.

The last three examples expressed an open condition; that is, nothing was contrary to fact. Now consider the following sentences:

1. If I were rich, I would buy myself a Mercedes.
2. If the child wanted to go, his parents would approve.
3. If Hans were to come early, we would leave right away.

The sentences in the first group differ from those in the second group in that the first group consists of statements about facts as they are or will become. The sentences in the second group consist of statements which are contrary to fact, in the sense that the condition expressed in the "if" clause is not met and is unlikely to be met. For example:

If I were rich, I would buy myself a Mercedes.

The condition expressed in the "if" clause is not met as far as the speaker is concerned (by framing the sentence in this way, the speaker implies that he is not rich, and suggests no real prospects of his becoming rich). In the second example:

If the child wanted to go, his parents would approve.

the clause "If the child wanted to go," implies that the child does not and will not want to go. Thus, a contrary-to-fact situation exists.

In open-condition "if-then" situations, German uses the indicative mood to make statements about facts or "facts-to-be":

Wenn er genug Geld hat, geht er heute abend ins Kino.

(If he has enough money, he'll go to the movies tonight.)

The indicative mood consists of the verb forms and tenses which you have learned up to now.

However, in contrary-to-fact "if-then" situations, German uses the subjunctive mood:

Wenn ich reich wäre, würde ich mir einen Mercedes kaufen.

(If I were rich, I would buy myself a Mercedes.)

The underlined verbs in the preceding sentence show subjunctive forms which you will learn in this Lesson. The important concept for you to retain from the preceding discussion is that "if-then" sentences may be in either the indicative or subjunctive mood. They are in the subjunctive mood whenever a contrary-to-fact situation is being expressed.

In this Lesson, we will deal only with sentences reflecting contrary-to-fact situations, in other words, sentences requiring use of the subjunctive mood. In order to facilitate your learning task, we will first learn the proper verb forms for the "then" or conclusion clause of the contrary-to-fact statement, i.e., the underlined portion of sentences such as the following:

Wenn ich Zeit hätte, würde ich meinen Freund besuchen.

(If I had time, I would visit my friend.)

The German verb pattern for the "then" clause in contrary-to-fact statements consists of the appropriately conjugated subjunctive form of the auxiliary werden plus the infinitive of the main verb, which goes to the end of the clause.

This verb pattern is called the conditional and is derived from the future indicative which you learned and practiced in Lesson 35. It follows that the würde-form shown below can refer either to present or to future time.

Wenn ich Zeit hätte, würde ich meinen Freund

subjunctive form of werden ("ich" form)

besuchen.

infinitive of main verb at end of clause

You will also note that the verb form würde precedes the pronoun subject ich, i.e., shows inverted word order. Can you explain why?

Subject and verb are inverted because the subordinate "if" clause happens to precede the main "then" clause, and as such produces subject-verb inversion in the "then" clause just as would adverbs, prepositional phrases, or other preceding elements.

It is not necessary for the "if" clause to precede the "then" clause, although this is the more common pattern. Thus, it is also possible to have "then-if" patterns such as:

Ich würde meinen Freund besuchen, wenn ich Zeit hätte.

(I would visit my friend if I had time.)

In such cases, subject-verb inversion does not take place, because there is no element preceding the main clause.

In the following exercises, you will learn the subjunctive forms of the auxiliary verb werden and then use these forms within the "then" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements.

Listen to and repeat the following subjunctive forms of

werden:

ich würde

du würdest

er, sie, es würde

wir würden

ihr würdet

sie würden

Sie würden

Stop your tape and study these forms until you know them thoroughly, then turn the page.

(You may note that the subjunctive forms of werden are identical with the imperfect tense forms, except that the -u- of the past tense stem is replaced by -ü-.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subjunctive form of werden:

1. ihr _____
2. du _____

Say the appropriate subjunctive form of werden:

1. wir
2. Sie
3. du
4. sie [sing.]
5. ihr
6. sie [pl.]
7. ich

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate subjunctive form of werden. As you work through this exercise, you should note:

- a. the infinitive of the main verb at the end of the "then" clause;
- b. the inversion of the appropriate form of werden with its subject, due to the preceding subordinate "if" clause.

(For the time being, please accept the unlauted forms of haben and sein without explanation. They will be introduced later. In this section we will concentrate on the "then" clause.)

1. If he had time, he would stay longer.
Wenn er Zeit hätte, er länger bleiben.
2. If we had more money, we would eat at expensive restaurants.
Wenn wir mehr Geld hätten, wir in teuren Restaurants essen.
3. If she were here, she would come along.
Wenn sie hier wäre, sie mitkommen.
4. If it weren't so late, I would read a book.
Wenn es nicht so spät wäre, ich ein Buch lesen.
5. If you had a phone, you would call him for sure.
Wenn ihr ein Telefon hättet, ihr ihn bestimmt anrufen.

2. würde sie sie besuchen.

3. würden wir länger in München bleiben.

4. würden sie viel Geld gewinnen.

5. würde ich das Auto kaufen.

6. würde er mehr Bier kaufen.

7. würden Sie schnell Deutsch lernen.

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences, supplying the entire "then" clause in the subjunctive.

1. If the cake weren't good, I wouldn't eat it.
Wenn der Kuchen nicht gut wäre,
2. If you were here, you would help us for sure.
(use bestimmt)
Wenn du hier wärest,
3. If it were seven o'clock, we would get up.
Wenn es sieben Uhr wäre,
4. If the museum were open, we would visit it today.
Wenn das Museum geöffnet wäre,
5. If Professor Schulz had the new books, he would give them to us.
Wenn Professor Schulz die neuen Bücher hätte,

When the main verb in the "then" clause is reflexive, the usual rules for the placement of the reflexive pronoun apply. You should thus be able to complete the following sentence, using the reflexive construction sich setzen. When you hear the signal, say the complete German sentence. Remember that subject-verb inversion is required here, due to the preceding subordinate "if" clause.

Wenn ich einen Stuhl hätte,
(If I had a chair, I would sit down.)

You should have said:

Wenn ich einen Stuhl hätte, würde ich mich setzen.

Due to inverted word order, the reflexive pronoun here follows the subject (ich) rather than the inflected verb (würde).

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate subjunctive construction using the reflexive main verbs in parentheses.

1. If they were in Munich, they would meet each other. (sich treffen)
Wenn sie in München wären,
2. If I had time, I would sit down. (sich setzen)
Wenn ich Zeit hätte,
3. If Franz were here, he would have fun. (sich amüsieren)
Wenn Franz hier wäre,
4. If they had children, they would buy themselves a bigger house. (sich kaufen)
Wenn sie Kinder hätten,

The same subjunctive pattern with werden that you have been practicing within "then" clauses in contrary-to-fact conditional sentences can also be used independently (i.e. in a single-clause sentence) to express a polite request. For example:

Würden Sie sich setzen?

(Would you sit down?)

Würdest du etwas Kaffee kaufen?

(Would you buy some coffee?)

The word bitte is often added to sentences of this type to make the request even more indirect and polite:

Würden Sie sich bitte setzen?

(Would you please sit down?)

Würdest du bitte etwas Kaffee kaufen?

(Would you please buy some coffee?)

Say complete German sentences, using a subjunctive construction with werden to express a polite request:

1. Would you please help me?

.... du mir bitte?

2. Would you please bring me a cup of coffee?

.... Sie mir bitte eine Tasse Kaffee?

3. Would you please set the table?

.... ihr bitte?

4. Hans, would you please shave?

Hans, du dich bitte?

Write complete German sentences, using the subjunctive construction with werden to express a polite request.

1. Would you [formal] please open the door?

_____?

2. Would you [fam. sing.] please call him up?

_____?

3. Would you [fam. pl.] please close the book?

4. Would you [formal] please pick me up tomorrow morning?

_____?

5. Would you [formal] please bring along a few bottles of beer for us?

Section 2

Subjunctive of "Haben" and "Sein" in "If" Clauses

Up until now, you have been working only with the "then" or "conclusion" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements. In this section, you will learn and practice the formation of "if" or condition clauses, and at the end of the section, you will be asked to combine both "if" and "then" clauses into complete contrary-to-fact statements in the subjunctive mood.

The würde + infinitive form (that is, the conditional) is frequently found in the conclusion "then" clause; and the subjunctive of a given verb in the condition "if" clause.

Consider the following English sentences, noticing especially the underlined words:

1. If I had enough money, I would buy a new house.
2. If Hans were here, he would come with us.

What are the infinitive forms of the two English verbs underlined above?

The first sentence uses the English verb "to have" and the second sentence uses the verb "to be."

The "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements very often use one or the other of these two verbs:

If I had time

If his parents had more money

If Sam had a new book

If the new neighbors were more friendly

If I were president

If you were here

A corresponding situation exists in German. The appropriate subjunctive forms of haben and sein are widely used in the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements:

Wenn ich Zeit hätte

Wenn seine Eltern mehr Geld hätten

Wenn Sam ein neues Buch hätte

Wenn die neuen Nachbarn freundlicher wären

Wenn ich Präsident wäre

Wenn du hier wärest

In order for you to use haben and sein in "if" clauses, it will first be necessary to learn the appropriate subjunctive forms of these two verbs. We will deal first with haben. Listen to and repeat each of the subjunctive forms below.

ich hätte
du hättest er, sie, es hätte wir hätten
ihr hättet
sie hätten
Sie hätten

It may help you to note that the subjunctive forms of haben are the same as the corresponding imperfect tense forms, except that the stem vowel -a- is replaced by -ä- in each of the personal forms of the subjunctive. Stop your tape and study these forms further as required, before beginning the exercise on the next page.

Write the appropriate subjunctive form of haben.

1. wir _____
2. ihr _____
3. sie [sing.] _____
4. Sie _____

2. If Hans and Maria had time, they would come.
....., würden sie kommen.
3. If Franz had money, he would buy himself a new suit.
....., würde er sich einen neuen Anzug kaufen.
4. If we had wine, we would drink it.
....., würden wir ihn trinken.
5. If Helga had an interesting book, she would read it.
....., würde sie es lesen.

6. If I had a pencil, I would lend it to you.
....., würde ich ihn dir leihen.

We will now turn to the subjunctive forms of sein. Listen to and repeat each of the verb forms below:

ich wäre
du wärest
er, sie, es wäre
wir wären
ihr wäret
sie wären
Sie wären

The subjunctive forms of sein (like haben) also have a vowel change from the imperfect stem a to ä. However, they show an additional deviation from the imperfect forms as underlined. Study as required, then turn the page for exercises.

Write the appropriate subjunctive form of sein.

- 7. If you [fam., pl.] had the book by Thomas Mann, you would lend it to us.
....., würdet ihr es uns leihen.
- 8. If Mrs. Schulz were friendlier, I would visit her.
....., würde ich sie besuchen.

In all of the "if" clauses of the preceding exercises, where is the subjunctive form of haben or sein placed, and why?

The inflected subjunctive form of haben or sein is placed at the end of the clause

because the "if" clause, as a subordinate clause, requires transposed word order.

In the following exercises, you will be asked to produce complete contrary-to-fact statements consisting of both "if" and "then" clauses. In each case, the "then" clause will require the conditional with werden + infinitive of the main verb. The "if" clause will require the appropriate subjunctive of either haben or sein.

Write complete German sentences consisting of an "if" clause and a "then" clause in a contrary-to-fact statement. Base your sentence on the two indicative sentences shown. For example,

You see: Ich habe kein Buch. Ich lese nicht.
(I don't have a book. I am not reading.)

You write: Wenn ich ein Buch hätte, würde ich lesen.
(If I had a book, I would read.)

The negative elements in the two indicative sentences serve as a reminder that the "if-then" situation is indeed contrary to fact.

1. Ich bin nicht zu Hause. Ich schlafe nicht.

2. Er hat kein Auto. Er besucht mich nicht.

3. Sie sind nicht krank. Sie bleiben nicht zu Hause. [pl.]

4. Maria ist nicht hier. Sie hilft mir nicht.

5. Du hast kein Geld. Du kaufst dir kein Auto.

6. Sie sind nicht in Deutschland. Sie rufen ihn nicht an. [form.]

7. Ihr seid nicht reich. Ihr kauft euch kein grosses Haus.

3. If we had time, we would go to the soccer game.

4. If I had a car, I would gladly drive you to the train station.

Wenn ich ein Auto, ich dich gern zum Bahnhof

5. If Maria were nice, I would go out with her.

Wenn Maria nett, ich mit ihr

6. If Franz had a dictionary, he would find the word.

Wenn Franz ein Wörterbuch, er das Wort

7. If they were in Munich, they would visit Professor Schulz.

Wenn sie in München, sie Professor Schulz

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English, using the appropriate "if-then" constructions in contrary-to-fact statements.

1. If Hans were here, we would stay longer.

2. If I had time, I would visit him.

3. If the Müllers had more money, they would buy a car.

4. If Heidi were here, we would give her the address.

5. If it were not so cold, the children would play in the garden.

6. If Maria had a bicycle, she would come along.

7. If Franz were home, he would help me.

8. If the new student had a telephone, we would call him.

Section 3

Contrary-to-Fact Statements

Containing Modal Auxiliaries

In the first section of this Lesson, you learned to use the conditional with the auxiliary werden + the infinitive of the main verb in the "then" clause of a contrary-to-fact statement. For example:

Wenn ich zu Hause wäre, würde ich das Geschirr abwaschen.

(If I were at home, I would wash the dishes.)

Now let us assume that the speaker wished to incorporate the idea of "necessity" into the "then" clause. In other words, instead of saying "... I would wash the dishes", to say "... I would have to wash the dishes." This means that the modal auxiliary müssen has to be incorporated into the German "then" clause. The resulting sentence is shown below:

Wenn ich zu Hause wäre, müsste ich das Geschirr abwaschen.

(If I were at home, I would have to wash the dishes.)

1. In the example above, does the auxiliary verb werden appear in the "then" clause?
2. What word takes the place of werden?
3. What grammatical form does müsste represent?

1. No. The auxiliary verb werden does not appear in the "then" clause.
2. The word müssen takes the place of werden to avoid a cumbersome double-infinitive construction (Wenn ich zu Hause wäre, würde ich dich anrufen müssen).
3. The word müsste, appropriately conjugated, is the subjunctive form of müssen.

The subjunctive forms of the modals (except for mögen) are produced by adding the imperfect tense endings (which you studied in Lesson 29) to the unchanged infinitive stem, that is, the infinitive minus the -en ending. [The subjunctive forms of mögen are produced by adding the imperfect endings to the stem möch-. You are already familiar with the special use of möchte; therefore, it will not be necessary to discuss this derivative verb form in the context of this lesson.]

In this section we will learn the subjunctive forms of the modal auxiliary verbs and use them in previously practiced contrary-to-fact patterns.

Listen to and repeat the subjunctive forms of können and wollen shown below. Notice that können RETAINS the umlaut in all inflected forms. (Since wollen and sollen do not have an umlaut in the infinitive, none of the subjunctive forms are umlauted.) The personal endings are underlined.

können
 ich könnte du könntest er, sie, es könnte wir könnten ihr könntet
 sie könnten
 Sie könnten

wollen
 ich wollte du wolltest er, sie, es wollte wir wollten ihr wolltet
 sie wollten
 Sie wollten

Study the above forms until you are confident of the way in which the subjunctive is formed in all persons, then turn the page for exercises.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subjunctive form of the modal auxiliary verb in parentheses. Remember that modal verbs having an umlaut in the infinitive retain the umlaut in the subjunctive, and that mögen uses the stem form möch-.

1. (können) du _____
2. (sollen) ihr _____
3. (mögen) sie [pl.] _____
4. (dürfen) er _____

START THE TAPE.

We will now practice using modal auxiliaries in "then" clauses in the subjunctive.

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate subjunctive form of the modal verb in parentheses. In each instance, note carefully the English rendering of the modal concept.

1. If she had the time, she would be able to go to the movies. (können)
Wenn sie Zeit hätte, sie ins Kino gehen.
2. If Hans had something to eat in the house, he would be able to invite his friends. (können)
Wenn Hans etwas zu essen im Hause hätte, er seine Freunde einladen.
3. If my father were here, I would certainly be allowed to go out. (dürfen)
Wenn mein Vater hier wäre, ich sicher ausgehen.
4. If the Müllers had more children, they would have to buy themselves a bigger house. (müssen)
Wenn Müllers mehr Kinder hätten, sie sich ein grösseres Haus kaufen.

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate forms of the modals given in parentheses.

1. If you had money, you should buy me something. (sollen)
Wenn du Geld hättest, du mir etwas kaufen.

2. If he had the book, he should loan it to them. (sollen)
Wenn er das Buch hätte, er es ihnen leihen.
3. If Hans and Inge had more time, they would be able to go to the museum. (können) Wenn Hans und Inge mehr Zeit hätten, sie ins Museum gehen.
4. If Anni weren't so young, she would be allowed to see that film. (dürfen)
Wenn Anni nicht so jung wäre, sie sich diesen Film ansehen.
5. If it were colder, they would have to bring their winter coats along. (müssen)
Wenn es kälter wäre, sie ihre Wintermäntel mitbringen.

The subjunctive forms of modals can also be used in the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements, in which case they follow the word order pattern shown below:

Wenn ich den Film sehen dürfte, würde ich mitgehen.

(If I were allowed to see the movie, I would go along.)

Following the above pattern, fill in the blanks with the appropriate form of the main verb and the modal auxiliary to make a complete "if" clause in the subjunctive mood.

1. If they wanted to go out, I would come along. (wollen)
Wenn sie _____, würde ich mitkommen.
2. If Karl had to work longer, we would pick him up. (müssen) Wenn Karl länger _____, würden wir ihn abholen.
3. If Inge were allowed to dance, she would go out with us. (dürfen) Wenn Inge _____, würde sie mit uns ausgehen.
4. If she couldn't call him, she would write to him. (können) Wenn sie ihn nicht _____, würde sie ihm schreiben.
5. If your parents should depart earlier, we would take them to the train station. (sollen) Wenn deine Eltern früher _____, würden wir sie zum Bahnhof bringen.
6. If Ingrid would like to stay with the Meyers for a week, they would gladly invite her. (wollen)

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English. Use the modal auxiliary verb in parentheses.

1. If she had to do her homework, she would stay home. (müssen)

Wenn sie ihre Hausaufgaben, würde sie zu Hause bleiben.

2. If we were allowed to visit Karl in the hospital, we would be very glad. (dürfen)

Wenn wir Karl im Krankenhaus, würden wir uns sehr freuen.

3. If the students could work on weekends, they would earn some money. (können)

Wenn die Schüler an den Wochenenden, würden sie etwas Geld verdienen.

4. If you would want to go to the movies with us, we would buy you a ticket. (wollen)

Wenn du mit uns ins Kino, würden wir dir eine Karte kaufen.

5. If Ingrid could stay longer in Germany, she would learn more German. (können)

Wenn Ingrid länger in Deutschland, würde sie mehr Deutsch lernen.

6. If Peter didn't have to work so much, he would play soccer on Sunday. (müssen)

Wenn Peter nicht so viel, würde er am Sonntag Fußball spielen.

Some Other Uses of the Subjunctive

Although a very frequent use of the German subjunctive is in "if-then" contrary-to-fact statements, this is not the only application of this mood within the German language. You have already seen another use of the subjunctive in connection with the making of polite requests on the pattern:

Würden Sie (bitte) die Post holen?
(Would you please pick up the mail?)

In addition to the subjunctive forms of werden (as in the example above), the subjunctive forms of the modal auxiliaries, especially dürfen and können, can be used in making polite requests:

Dürften wir Ihnen helfen?
(Might we help you?)

Könnten Sie bitte die Tür zumachen?
(Could you please close the door?)

Say complete German sentences, using a subjunctive construction with werden or the modal auxiliary in parentheses, to express a polite request.

1. Could you please help me? (können)
.... du mir bitte?
2. Would you please close the window? (werden)
.... Sie bitte das Fenster?
3. Could you call me tomorrow? (können)
.... ihr mich morgen?
4. Might I ask you for the magazine? (dürfen)
.... ich Sie um die Zeitschrift?
5. Would you please pick us up tonight? (werden)
.... ihr uns bitte heute abend?

NOTES

The subjunctive mood is also used to express an unfulfillable wish:

Wenn ich nur bald in München wäre!

(If only I were in Munich soon!)

Wenn ich nur besser Auto fahren könnte!

(If I could only drive better!)

You will note that these "unfulfillable wishes" are grammatically equivalent to the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements. Indeed they can be thought of as constituting the first clause of an "if-then" sentence in which the "then" conclusion is not explicitly stated:

Wenn ich nur bald in München wäre [, würde ich froh sein]!

Write complete German sentences on the basis of the given English.

1. If I were only younger!

_____!

2. If he only could help us!

_____!

3. If only she were rich!

_____!

4. If Franz were only here!

_____!

5. If Inge only were allowed to go out!

_____!

6. If we only had a bigger house!

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English.

1. If they only had more time!

2. If Hans only could visit us!

3. If only we were home!

4. If I were only allowed to buy this car!

Both in unfulfillable wishes of the type you have just practiced and in the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact sentences, it is possible to omit the word wenn without affecting the meaning of the sentence or clause. The omission of wenn parallels the omission of "if" in the related English constructions. For example, in English it is possible to say:

If he were here (we would go) or, omitting the word "if":

Were he here (we would go)

The corresponding German constructions are:

Wenn er hier wäre

and

Wäre er hier

Constructions of the type "Were he here", are somewhat stilted in modern English but are quite acceptable in contemporary German.

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Wenn ich nur jünger wäre!

2. Wenn er uns nur helfen könnte!

3. Wenn sie nur reich wäre!

4. Wenn Franz nur hier wäre!

5. Wenn Inge nur ausgehen dürfte!

6. Wenn wir nur ein grösseres Haus hätten!

START THE TAPE.

Restate orally each of the following sentences, omitting the word wenn and making any necessary changes in word order.

1. Wenn Inge nur kommen dürfte!

2. Wenn sie ein Auto hätten, könnten sie uns nach Hause fahren.

3. Wenn er nur zu Hause wäre!

4. Wenn ich reich wäre, würde ich mir einen Porsche kaufen.

5. Wenn wir ihn nur treffen könnten!

6. Wenn Professor Schulz Zeit hätte, würde er uns gern die Stadt zeigen.

The subjunctive is also used in subordinate clauses introduced by als ob (as if, as though) because the situation presented in such a clause is certainly contrary to fact. For example:

Er tut, als ob er Geld hätte.

(He acts as though he had money.)

Please observe the transposed word-order rule in practicing this pattern on the following page.

Fill in the blanks on the basis of the given English, using a subordinate clause with als ob.

1. The child acts as though it were tired.

Das Kind tut, _____.

2. Mr. Meyer acts as though he had no time.

Herr Meyer tut, _____.

3. Professor Schulz looks as though he were sick.

Professor Schulz sieht aus, _____

4. Peter always acts as though he were rich.

Peter tut immer, _____.

5. It looks as though he wanted to come along.

Es sieht aus, _____.

Subjunctive of Strong Verbs

In this Lesson, you will learn the subjunctive forms of so-called "strong" verbs and will practice their use in contrary-to-fact statements and other contexts in which the subjunctive mood is used. The following sections are included:

1. Subjunctive Forms of Strong Verbs
2. Subjunctive of Strong Verbs in Contrary-to-Fact Statements
3. Strong Verbs in Other Subjunctive Contexts

Subjunctive Forms of Strong Verbs

In Lesson 30 (Imperfect Tense II), you learned that the so-called "strong" or "irregular" verbs have imperfect tense stems which cannot be reliably predicted from their infinitive forms. For example, the imperfect stem of the strong verb bleiben is blieb; the imperfect stem of fliegen is flog.

Since the subjunctive forms of strong verbs are derived from the imperfect tense stem, the task of learning the subjunctive of these verbs is in large part a matter of remembering their imperfect tense stems, making any necessary changes in the stem, and adding appropriate endings.

Some strong verbs form the subjunctive directly from the imperfect tense stem, without any change in the stem itself. For example, blieb, the imperfect stem of bleiben, is also the stem form used in the subjunctive. On the other hand, flog, the imperfect tense stem of fliegen, is NOT directly transferred to the subjunctive. Instead, the stem vowel -o- is changed to -ö-.

In this Lesson, we will work with the strong verbs listed below, whose imperfect tense stems were introduced and practiced in Lesson 30.

For each verb, the appropriate subjunctive stem is also shown. As you may already know, the vowels a, o, and u are those which are capable of taking umlaut, and you will note that the verbs whose imperfect stem vowel is one of these three change to the corresponding umlauted vowel in the subjunctive stem.

Listen to and repeat the infinitive, imperfect stem, and subjunctive stem of each of the strong verbs below. For example:

You see and hear: fliegen flog flög

 You say: fliegen flog flög

You should now be in a position to produce the subjunctive forms of these representative strong verbs by adding the appropriate endings to the subjunctive stem. The endings which strong verbs use in the subjunctive are the same as the subjunctive endings for werden, which you learned in the preceding Lesson. Listen to and repeat the following subjunctive forms of bleiben, noticing the underlined endings:

ich bliebe u	wir blieben en
du bliebest est	ihr bliebet et
er, sie, es bliebe e	sie blieben en
	Sie blieben en

Section 2

Subjunctive of Strong Verbs in Contrary-to-Fact Statements

In the preceding Lesson, you learned to form subjunctive "if-then" sentences in which the subjunctive verbs were either sein, haben, werden, or one of the modal auxiliaries. Using these verbs, you were able to produce sentences such as:

Wenn Herr Meyer mehr Zeit hätte, könnte er öfter ins Theater gehen.

(If Mr. Meyer had more time, he could go to the theater more often.)

Wenn das Wetter besser wäre, würden wir das Wochenende auf dem Lande verbringen.

(If the weather were better, we would spend the weekend in the country.)

The subjunctive forms of "strong" verbs are, of course, also used in contrary-to-fact "if-then" statements. In contemporary spoken German these forms usually occur in the condition "if" clause; and the conditional with werden generally replaces the subjunctive main-verb form in the conclusion "then" clause. While you should be able to recognize subjunctive main-verb forms in both clauses of a contrary-to-fact statement, in this Lesson we will only practice the formula:

"if [wenn]" condition clause → subjunctive of main verb

"then [dann]" conclusion clause → conditional with werden + infinitive of main verb

Keeping the formula given on the preceding page in mind, please study the following sentence:

Wenn ich zu Hause bliebe, würde ich Briefe schreiben.

Having studied the subjunctive forms of high-frequency "strong" verbs and being already familiar with the conditional from Lesson 40, you are now able to practice contrary-to-fact statements patterned after the above example.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subjunctive verb form to complete the "if" clause.

1. If Fritz came home tonight, he would call us up.
Wenn Fritz heute abend nach Hause _____, würde er uns anrufen.
2. If the dress pleased Mrs. Müller, she would wear it more often.
Wenn das Kleid Frau Müller _____, würde sie es öfter tragen.
3. If they stayed in Cologne, we would go with them to a good restaurant.
Wenn sie in Köln _____, würden wir mit ihnen in ein gutes Restaurant gehen.
4. If you helped Professor Schulz, he would find his books more quickly.
Wenn du Professor Schulz _____, würde er seine Bücher schneller finden.
5. If I sat in the first row, I would see better.
Wenn ich in der ersten Reihe _____, würde ich besser sehen.
6. If I mowed the lawn myself, I would save money.
Wenn ich den Rasen selbst _____, würde ich Geld sparen.

7. If Inge dressed more warmly, she wouldn't catch a cold.

Wenn Inge sich wärmer _____, würde sie sich keine Erkältung holen.

Wenn Peter mit dem Auto, würde er seinen Hund mitnehmen.
3. If you talked to your friends, they would certainly understand your problem.
Wenn du mit deinen Freunden, würden sie dein Problem bestimmt verstehen.
4. If the suit didn't please me, I wouldn't wear it.
Wenn mir der Anzug nicht, würde ich ihn nicht tragen.
5. If I found his money, I would give it back to him.
Wenn ich sein Geld, würde ich es ihm zurückgeben.
6. If Ingrid didn't dress so strangely, she would look much prettier.

7. If you sat in the first row, you would see everything much better.
Wenn du in der ersten Reihe, würdest du alles viel besser sehen.

Write complete German sentences on the basis of the given English. Use the subjunctive form of the main verb in the "if" clause, and the Conditional in the "then" clause.

1. If Paul came to us, we would help him.

2. If you [fam. pl.] gave me the magazines, I would read them.

3. If the apartment pleased the Meyers, they would take it.

4. If Hans dressed himself quickly, we would take him along.

5. If you [fam. sing.] stayed over the weekend, Meyers would invite you to a party.

3. Wenn die Wohnung den Meyers gefiele, würden sie sie nehmen.

4. Wenn Hans sich schnell anzöge, würden wir ihn mitnehmen.

NOTES

Strong Verbs in Other Subjunctive Contexts

In this section, you will use the subjunctive forms of strong verbs in a number of contexts other than the "if-then" sentences practiced in the preceding section.

In Lesson 40, you learned subjunctive constructions which express an unfulfillable wish on the speaker's part, working with the subjunctive forms of haben, sein, and the modals. We will now expand this familiar pattern by substituting the subjunctive forms of "strong" verbs. As you will recall, unfulfillable-wish patterns are grammatically equivalent to the "if" clause of contrary-to-fact statements. For example:

Wenn die Kinder nur länger schlafen!
(If the children would only sleep later!)

Wenn Frau Müller sich nur besser anzöge!
(If Mrs. Müller only dressed better!)

Write complete German sentences on the basis of the given English.

1. If the waiter would only come!

2. If only Peter didn't drive so fast!

3. If you [fam. sing.] would only stay longer!

4. If they would only take us along! (use mitnehmen)

5. If the teacher would only help the students more!

6. If you [fam. sing.] would only write a letter!

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Wenn der Kellner nur käme!

2. Wenn Peter nur nicht so schnell führe!

3. Wenn du nur länger bliebest!

4. Wenn sie uns nur mitnähmen!

5. Wenn der Lehrer den Schülern nur mehr hülfe!

6. Wenn du nur einen Brief schriebest!

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English.

1. If the soccer game would only start!

2. If only he would stay another week!

3. If only they wouldn't sing so loud!

4. If only you [fam. sing.] got dressed faster!

5. If only I found my money!

6. If only you [fam. pl.] would help me!

As you will recall from Lesson 40, subjunctive verb forms are also used in subordinate clauses introduced by als ob (as if, as though). You are by now familiar with sentences such as:

Er tut, als ob er Geld hätte.

(He acts as though he had money.)

Es sieht aus, als ob sie mitkommen wollten.

(It looks as though they wanted to come along.)

Sie tut, als ob sie krank wäre.

(She acts as though she were sick.)

Substituting a "strong" verb for the subjunctive forms of haben, sein or a modal, examples for als ob clauses are given as follows:

Er tut, als ob er schliefe.

(He acts as though he were asleep.)

Sie tun, als ob ihnen das Bild gefiele.

(They act as though they liked the picture.)

Sie tut, als ob sie gut Schi liefe.

(She acts as though she were a good skier.)

Study the above examples, taking note of the transposed word order in the subordinate als-ob clause.

Fill in the blanks on the basis of the given English, using a subordinate clause with als ob.

1. The student acts as though he wrote something down.

Der Schüler tut, _____

2. It looks as though they were taking along too much luggage.

Es sieht aus, _____

3. She acts as though she were staying home tonight.

Sie tut, _____

4. The boy acts as though he were mowing the lawn.

Der Junge tut, _____

5. Mrs. Müller acts as though she were reading the newspaper.

Frau Müller tut, _____

4., als ob er den Rasen schnitte.

5., als ob sie die Zeitung läse.

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English, supplying the appropriate subjunctive verb form to complete the als ob clause.

1. It looks as though Mrs. Müller didn't like to eat fish.

Es sieht aus, als ob Frau Müller nicht gern
Fisch

2. The guests act as though they were drinking the sour wine.

Die Gäste tun, als ob sie den sauren Wein

3. It looks as though our neighbors never mowed their lawn.

Es sieht aus, als ob unsere Nachbarn nie ihren
Rasen

4. You act as though you were really reading the newspaper.

Du tust, als ob du wirklich die Zeitung

5. It looks as though Hans were sleeping during class.

Es sieht aus, als ob Hans im Unterricht

As you learned in the preceding Lesson, the "if-" clause construction with wenn can be replaced by a subject-verb inverted pattern in which wenn is omitted:

Wenn mein Vater mir Geld gäbe, würde ich nach Amerika fahren.

(If my father gave me money, I would go to America.)

could be rephrased:

Gäbe mein Vater mir Geld, würde ich nach Amerika fahren.

Rephrase each of the following sentences, using subject-verb inverted word order to replace the wenn construction shown.

1. Wenn Franz uns zum Kino führe, würden wir etwas länger bleiben.

2. Wenn die Kinder sich schneller anzögen, würden sie nicht so spät zur Schule kommen.

3. Wenn Professor Schulz sich ein Taxi nähme, würde er früh genug zum Flugplatz kommen.

4. Wenn du den Hund mitnähmest, würde ich zu Hause bleiben.

5. Wenn der Mann unsere Koffer trüge, würde ich ihm ein Trinkgeld geben.

6. Wenn Franz und Heidi früher nach Hause kämen, würden wir sie an den Strand mitnehmen.

NOTES

Since unfulfillable wishes are grammatically equivalent to "if" clauses in the subjunctive mood, they can also be rephrased so as to use inverted word order rather than the wenn construction. For example:

Wenn der Arzt nur bald käme!

(If the doctor would only come soon!)

could be rephrased:

Käme der Arzt nur bald!

Rephrase orally each of the following unfulfillable wishes, using subject-verb inverted word order instead of the wenn construction shown.

1. Wenn Hans nur bald zu uns käme!
2. Wenn die Ferien nur früher begännen!
3. Wenn die Kinder nur mehr Milch tranken!
4. Wenn meiner Frau nur das neue Kleid gefiele!
5. Wenn sie uns nur mitnähmen!

Transposed word-order constructions in als ob clauses may also be replaced by an inverted word-order pattern. In that case, the word "ob" of the "als ob" combination is omitted without change in meaning. For example:

Er tut, als ob er die Zeitung läse.

(He acts as though he were reading the newspaper.)

could be rephrased:

Er tut, als läse er die Zeitung.

(He acts as though he were reading the newspaper.)

Rephrase orally each of the following sentences containing an als ob clause, using subject-verb inverted word order and omitting "ob."

1. Er tut, als ob er den Satz aufschriebe.
2. Du tust, als ob du nie aus dem Haus kämest.
3. Es sieht aus, als ob die Kinder schon schliefen.
4. Sie tun, als ob ihnen die Wohnung gefiele.
5. Ihr tut, als ob ihr mit der Arbeit begännet.

In the preceding Lesson, you learned and practiced the subjunctive forms of the so-called "strong" verbs. In this Lesson, you will work with the subjunctive forms of "weak" and "mixed" verbs. It is not difficult to learn the subjunctive forms of weak verbs, because they are identical with the imperfect tense forms which you studied in Lesson 29. The first section of this Lesson contains a series of review exercises on these forms.

The second section of the Lesson teaches the subjunctive forms of "mixed" verbs, which use the same imperfect/subjunctive endings as the "weak" verbs but which have irregular (and different) verb stems in both the imperfect and the subjunctive.

The third section contains exercises in which the subjunctive forms of "weak" and "mixed" verbs are used in contrary-to-fact sentences and other contexts requiring the subjunctive mood.

Subjunctive Forms of Weak Verbs

You are already familiar with the terminology "strong" and "weak" as applied to German verbs. The imperfect tense stems of "strong" verbs show vowel changes and other peculiarities which cannot be predicted on the basis of the infinitive form of the verb.

The imperfect tense stem of "weak" verbs, on the other hand, is easily and reliably obtained by dropping the -en (or in some cases, -n) ending of the infinitive form:

Infinitive	Imperfect Stem
kaufen	kauf-
dauern	dauer-

To this imperfect stem are added (with a few exceptions, to be noted) the imperfect tense endings underlined below. Listen and repeat:

ich kauf te	wir kauf ten
du kauf test	ihr kauf tet
er, sie, es kauf te	sie kauf ten
	Sie kauf ten

Review these forms, then turn the page for exercises.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate imperfect tense forms of the weak verb glauben.

Say the appropriate imperfect tense forms of the verbs shown in parentheses.

1. (suchen) ihr
2. (lernen) er
3. (besuchen) ich
4. (brauchen) sie [sing.]
5. (sich amüsieren) du dich
6. (kaufen) es
7. (zeigen) du
8. (machen) Sie
9. (grüssen) wir
10. (reparieren) Sie
11. (rauchen) ihr
12. (wohnen) ich
13. (abholen) wir ab

If the imperfect stem of a weak verb ends in -d or -t, an -e- is added between the stem and ending in order to facilitate pronunciation. For example, the weak verb baden has an imperfect stem (infinitive minus -en) which ends in -d: bad-. Thus, an -e- is inserted between bad- and the imperfect endings: ich bad-e-te.

What is the imperfect stem of the verb arbeiten, and with what consonant does the stem end?

The stem form is arbeit-, ending in the consonant -t. In constructing the imperfect forms of this verb, an -e- must be added between the stem and the imperfect endings. Listen and repeat:

ich arbeitete	wir arbeiteten
du arbeitetest	ihr arbeitetet
er, sie, es arbeitete	sie arbeiteten
	Sie arbeiteten

If the imperfect stem ends in a succession of consonants, of which the last is -m or -n, the same "-e- insertion rule" applies. For example:

Infinitive	Imperfect Stem	Imperfect Tense Form
öffnen	öffn-	ich öffnete

Study the above paragraphs further if you wish, then turn the page for exercises.

NOTES

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate imperfect tense forms of the weak verbs shown in parentheses. You should note that not all of these verbs require an inserted -e-.

Section 2

Subjunctive Forms of Mixed Verbs

As you learned in Lesson 30, there is a relatively small group of German verbs which use the regular "weak" endings in the imperfect tense, but add these endings to an irregular stem typical of the "strong" verbs. Because they combine these two characteristics, verbs of this group are often referred to as "mixed."

Bringen is a mixed verb which forms the imperfect tense as follows:

To the imperfect stem brach- (which you will note is not derived from the infinitive) are added the "weak" imperfect tense endings -te, -test, etc. as reviewed in the preceding section. The imperfect tense of bringen in the various personal forms is shown below:

ich brachte	wir brachten
du brachtest	ihr brachtet
er, sie, es brachte	sie brachten
	Sie brachten

The subjunctive forms of mixed verbs are NOT exactly similar to the imperfect forms, as a slightly different verb stem is used. For example, the subjunctive forms of bringen are NOT derived from brach- but from an unlauded stem bräch-. Listen to and repeat the resulting subjunctive forms of this verb:

ich brächte	wir brächten
du brächtest	ihr brächtet
er, sie, es brächte	sie brächten
	Sie brächten

The infinitive, imperfect stem, and subjunctive stem of the mixed verbs denken, kennen, and wissen are shown below. Listen to and repeat each of these forms, noticing especially the difference in spelling and pronunciation between the imperfect stem and the subjunctive stem:

Infinitive	Imperfect Stem	Subjunctive Stem denken	dach-	däch-
kennen	kann-	kenn-
wissen	wuss-	wüss-

You should now be in a position to give the subjunctive forms of bringen and the other mixed verbs shown. In working through the exercises to follow, you should remember that the subjunctive forms of the mixed verbs differ to some extent from the imperfect forms as a result of a vowel change in the subjunctive stem.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subjunctive form of the mixed verbs shown in parentheses.

1. (kennen) sie [sing.] _____
2. (wissen) Sie _____
3. (kennen) ich _____
4. (bringen) wir _____
5. (denken) ihr _____

Section 3

Subjunctive Uses of Weak and Mixed Verbs

In Sections 1 and 2, you learned the subjunctive forms of "weak" and "mixed" verbs. Just as is true of "strong" verbs (as practiced in the preceding Lesson), the subjunctive forms of weak and mixed verbs can be used in contrary-to-fact sentences, to express unfulfillable wishes, and in subordinate als ob clauses. Since you have already practiced these constructions at some length in the two preceding Lessons, they will not be explained in detail here. Instead, example sentences and short verbal summaries of each of these subjunctive patterns will be given. After each summary, you will be asked to produce analogous sentences, incorporating the subjunctive forms of weak and mixed verbs.

Contrary-to-Fact "If-Then" Constructions Using Weak and Mixed Verbs

1. Wenn Franz Geld brauchte, würden wir es ihm geben.
(If Franz needed money, we would give it to him.)
2. Wenn ich seine Adresse wüsste, würde ich ihm schreiben.
(If I knew his address, I would write to him.)
3. Wenn du mir das Buch brächtest, würde ich es sofort lesen.
(If you brought me the book, I would read it at once.)

Study the above examples, noting the subjunctive in the condition "if" clause and the conditional in the conclusion "then" clause. Please note also the transposed word order in the subordinate wenn clause and the subject-verb inversion in the following [main] conclusion clause.

In Lesson 40, you learned the subjunctive forms of haben, sein, and the modals. These forms generally replace the conditional with werden + infinitive of main verb in the "then" clause, primarily for stylistic reasons. For example:

1. Wenn er mehr arbeitete, hätte er mehr Geld.
(If he worked more, he would have more money.)
2. Wenn er mehr arbeitete, wäre er nicht so arm.
(If he worked more, he would not be so poor.)
3. Wenn er mehr arbeitete, könnte er mehr Geld verdienen.
(If he worked more, he could earn more money.)

It is, of course, possible for these patterns to occur in the entire contrary-to-fact "if-then" construction. For example:

1. Wenn er mehr Geld hätte, könnte er ein neues Auto kaufen.
(If he had more money, he could buy a new car.)
2. Wenn er nicht so arm wäre, hätte er eine grössere Wohnung.
(If he weren't so poor, he would have a larger apartment.)
3. Wenn er ein neues Auto kaufen könnte, wäre er glücklich.
(If he could buy a new car, he would be happy.)

These last three patterns are presented for recognition purposes only and will not be part of the exercises in this Lesson.

NOTES

This exercise involves the use of weak verbs in the "if" clause of contrary-to-fact sentences. Fill in the blanks with a complete "if" clause, using the appropriate subjunctive form of the main verb.

1. If Hans picked us up now, we would still get to the train station in good time.
_____,
würden wir noch früh genug zum Bahnhof kommen.
2. If you [fam. pl.] brought us the newspaper, we would give you the money.
_____,
würden wir euch das Geld geben.
3. If the children learned some German, we would take them along to Germany.
_____,
würden wir sie nach Deutschland mitnehmen.
4. If you [fam. sing.] bathed the children now, we could eat earlier.
_____,
könnten wir früher essen.
5. If Inge would make us something to eat, we would help her.
_____,
würden wir ihr helfen.
6. If we weren't working today, we would be sitting at the beach now.
_____,
würden wir jetzt am Strand sitzen.

2. Wenn ihr uns die Zeitung brächtet

3. Wenn die Kinder etwas Deutsch lernten

4. Wenn du die Kinder jetzt badetest

5. Wenn Inge uns etwas zu essen machte

6. Wenn wir heute nicht arbeiteten

START THE TAPE.

Write complete German sentences on the basis of the given English. Use the subjunctive form of the main verb in the "if" clause. In the "then" clause, use either the conditional with werden + infinitive of main verb, the subjunctive forms of haben or sein, or a subjunctive modal construction.

1. If they were thinking of us, they would write us a letter.

2. If you [fam. sing.] smoked less, you wouldn't be so nervous.

3. If he knew the answer, he wouldn't ask.

4. If it didn't rain tomorrow, we could make an excursion.

5. If I worked faster, I would have more time.

Unfulfillable Wishes

These are, as you recall, grammatically equivalent to the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements. For example:

Wenn ich nur in Deutschland lebte!
(If only I lived in Germany!)

No ambiguity is likely to be present in the single (dependent) unfulfillable-wish clause. In speech, the intonation pattern, aided by the inserted word nur, signals a contrary-to-fact situation; in writing, the exclamation mark [in addition to the word nur] renders the meaning as being contrary to fact.

Now let us consider this example as part of a contrary-to-fact statement, omitting nur:

Wenn ich in Deutschland lebte,
(If I lived in Germany,)

As you can see, any possible ambiguity due to the outwardly identical forms of the subjunctive of weak verbs and those of the imperfect indicative is readily resolved. The würde-, wäre-, hätte-, or subjunctive modal construction in the conclusion clause leaves no doubt that a situation exists which is indeed contrary to fact.

Nevertheless, there is a strong tendency in colloquial German to replace the subjunctive form of weak verbs with parallel forms of the conditional. This is true for all contrary-to-fact patterns. Hence, could be rephrased without change in meaning as:

Wenn ich nur in Deutschland lebte!

Wenn ich nur in Deutschland leben würde!
(If only I would live in Germany!)

Say complete German sentences conveying an unfulfillable wish. Use the subjunctive form of the weak verb.

1. If Father would only buy a bigger house!
2. If they would only answer us!
3. If you [fam. sing.] only wouldn't smoke so much!
4. If only we lived [resided] in Berlin!
5. If the beautiful weather only would last longer!
6. If you [fam. pl.] would only greet your neighbors!
7. If he would only show us his new apartment!
8. If Inge and Hans would only visit me more often!

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Wenn sie an uns dächten, würden sie uns einen Brief schreiben.

2. Wenn du weniger rauchtest, wärest du nicht so nervös.

3. Wenn er die Antwort wüsste, würde er nicht fragen.

4. Wenn es morgen nicht regnete, könnten wir einen Ausflug machen.

5. Wenn ich schneller arbeitete, hätte ich mehr Zeit.

Subjunctive with "Als Ob"

You are already familiar with the use of the subjunctive in clauses introduced by als ob ("as though").

Es sieht aus, als ob es regnete.

(It looks as though it were raining.)

As is true of subordinate constructions generally, the inflected verb is placed at the end of the clause. Since als ob is always followed by the subjunctive, its use in a sentence is a clear indication of a subjunctive meaning, even though the verb form may be ambiguous.

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subordinate clause on the basis of the given English. Use the subjunctive form of the weak verb.

1. He acts as though we needed him.

Er tut, als ob _____
_____.

2. They act as though they lived in this elegant house.

Sie tun, als ob _____
_____.

3. Hans drives as though he were just (gerade) learning to drive.

Hans fährt, als ob _____

Past Subjunctive

In this Lesson, you will learn the forms and uses of the past subjunctive, which is required when references are made to contrary-to-fact states or events that would have taken place in the past.

The first section of the Lesson describes the differences in meaning and usage of the present and past subjunctive and provides a number of exercises on the formation of the past subjunctive and its use in contrary-to-fact statements.

The second section includes exercises in which past subjunctive forms are used in unfulfillable wishes, following als ob, and in other subjunctive contexts.

Introduction to thePast Subjunctive; Past Subjunctive Forms

All contrary-to-fact situations presented in Lessons 40 through 42 referred to hypothetical states or actions taking place in present or future time. For example, in the sentence:

Wenn ich das Geld hätte, würde ich es dir geben.

(If I had the money, I would give it to you.)

the "if" clause refers to a hypothetical present state ("If I had the money [now]), and the "then" clause refers to a potential future action ("I would give it to you.").

In summary, the subjunctive forms you have worked with so far are commonly referred to as the present subjunctive. They represent both present and future time. The past subjunctive to be studied in this module represents all past time. This means that the subjunctive has only two tenses.

Hypothetical states or actions referring to past time are expressed in terms of what "would (or could) have happened" if some condition had been fulfilled in the past.

English examples of these past time contrary-to-fact constructions are as follows:

1. If Hans had worked harder, he would have learned more German.
2. If we had left earlier, we would have arrived on time.
3. If Inge hadn't been tired, we would have taken her along to the movies.

The German equivalents of the three examples are:

1. Wenn Hans mehr gearbeitet hätte, hätte er mehr Deutsch gelernt.
2. Wenn wir früher abgefahren wären, wären wir rechtzeitig angekommen.
3. Wenn Inge nicht müde gewesen wäre, hätten wir sie ins Kino mitgenommen.

Let us analyze these sentences in detail. What is the mood, tense, and infinitive form of the verb forms hätte (hätten) and wäre (wären) in the above sentences?

The forms hätte (hätten) and wäre (wären) are present subjunctive forms of the verbs haben and sein, respectively.

What are the forms abgefahren, angekommen, gearbeitet, gelernt, and so forth?

These are the past participles of the respective verbs abfahren, ankommen, arbeiten, lernen, etc.

By now you should be aware that the German past subjunctive is a compound tense made up of the present subjunctive forms of haben or sein (which you learned in Lesson 40) and the past participle of the main verb. The word order for these constructions follows the basic rules with which you are familiar. In the "if" clause, the subordinating conjunction wenn produces transposed word order which places the inflected verb at the end of the clause:

Wenn Inge nicht müde gewesen wäre

In the "then" clause, subject-verb inversion places the inflected verb at the beginning of the clause:

.... hätten wir sie ins Kino mitgenommen.

The net effect is to place the two inflected verb forms next to one another (in written German separated by a comma).

You should be quite familiar with the present subjunctive forms of both haben and sein. Nevertheless, you should study the table below before beginning the exercises on the following pages.

haben

ich hätte
du hättest

er, sie, es hätte

wir hätten
ihr hättet
sie hätten
Sie hätten

sein

ich wäre
du wärest

er, sie, es wäre

wir wären
ihr wäret
sie wären
Sie wären

Fill in the blanks with the appropriate subjunctive form of haben to make a sentence in the past subjunctive. Note also the word order in the German sentence and the English translation.

1. Wenn ich Zeit gehabt _____, _____ ich dich angerufen.
(If I had had time, I would have called you up.)
2. Wenn ihr mich gefragt _____, _____ ich euch abgeholt.
(If you had asked me, I would have picked you up.)
3. Wenn du die Koffer getragen _____, _____ wir dir gedankt.
(If you had carried the suitcases, we would have thanked you.)
4. Wenn Hans das gewusst _____, _____ er sein Auto nicht in der Einfahrt geparkt.
(If Hans had known that, he would not have parked his car in the driveway.)
5. Wenn es gestern nicht geregnet _____, _____ die Kinder im Park gespielt.
(If it hadn't rained yesterday, the children would have played in the park.)
6. Wenn Meyers nicht das neue Haus gekauft _____, _____ sie dieses Jahr eine grössere Reise gemacht.

4. If Hans and Peter had visited us, we would have shown them the new museum.
5. If he had had a car, he would have driven downtown today. (use Auto)

Other Uses of the Past Subjunctive

As in the case of the present subjunctive, the past subjunctive can also occur in dependent unfulfillable-wish clauses and in als ob clauses.

As you already know, the unfulfillable wish pattern is identical with the "if" clause of a contrary-to-fact statement. For example.

Wenn der Arzt nur käme! (present subjunctive)

Wenn der Arzt nur gekommen wäre! (past subjunctive)

(If the doctor had only come!)

Having practiced "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements in the past subjunctive in Section 1, this pattern should require no further discussion.

NOTES

As you know, an als ob clause requires a subjunctive construction. Whether the present subjunctive or the past subjunctive is used depends on the time expressed in the als ob clause. Notice the following example sentences:

1. Herr Meyer tut, als ob er krank wäre.
(present subjunctive)
(Mr. Meyer acts as though he were sick.)
2. Herr Meyer tut, als ob er krank gewesen wäre.
(past subjunctive)
(Mr. Meyer acts as though he had been sick.)

Word order in past subjunctive clauses following als ob corresponds to the usual subordinate clause pattern; the inflected verb is placed at the end of the clause, immediately following the past participle of the main verb.

The action expressed in the main clause can be in either present or past tense, depending on the intended meaning. Thus, the following pattern is also possible:

Herr Meyer tat, als ob er krank gewesen wäre.
(Mr. Meyer acted as though he had been sick.)

Fill in the blanks with a complete subordinate clause on the basis of the given English.

1. Mrs. Müller acts as though she had spent the summer in Italy.
Frau Müller tut, als ob _____
_____.
2. It looks as though he had been here last night.
Es sieht aus, als ob _____

3. The children act as though they had been in school.
Die Kinder tun, als ob _____

4. You act as though you had been interested in our trip.
Ihr tut, als ob _____

START THE TAPE.

In Lesson 40, you learned an alternative pattern for expressing the "if" clause portion of contrary-to-fact statements. Rather than using a clause with wenn, it is possible to omit wenn and use subject-verb inverted word order. An example using the present subjunctive is shown below:

1. (Construction with wenn)

Wenn ich Zeit hätte, würde ich meine Freunde besuchen.

(If I had time, I would visit my friends.)

2. (Construction omitting wenn)

Hätte ich Zeit, würde ich meine Freunde besuchen.

(If I had time [literally, had I time], I would visit my friends.)

Keeping in mind that inverted word order affects the inflected verb in auxiliary-plus-past-participle constructions (such as the past subjunctive), how would you rephrase the following example, omitting wenn?

Wenn ich Zeit gehabt hätte, hätte ich meine Freunde besucht.

(If I had had time, I would have visited my friends.)

You would say:

Hätte ich Zeit gehabt, hätte ich meine Freunde besucht.

Fill in the blanks with an appropriate "if" clause in the past subjunctive, using inverted word order and omitting wenn.

1. Wenn das Wetter nicht so schlecht gewesen wäre, hätten wir euch besucht.

hätten wir euch besucht.

2. Wenn die Kinder schneller gegangen wären, wären sie früher nach Hause gekommen.

wären sie früher nach Hause gekommen.

3. Wenn ich es nicht in der Zeitung gelesen hätte, hätte ich es einfach nicht geglaubt.

hätte ich es einfach nicht geglaubt.

4. Wenn Hans sich die Adresse aufgeschrieben hätte, hätte er unser Haus schneller gefunden.

4. Hätte Hans sich die Adresse aufgeschrieben,

5. Hätte Heidi etwas länger gewartet,

6. Hätte Inge nicht so lange in Deutschland gelebt,

START THE TAPE.

Say complete German sentences, changing the "if" clause to a clause using inverted word order and omitting wenn.

1. Wenn er uns die Zeitungen mitgebracht hätte, hätten wir ihm gedankt.
2. Wenn Hans uns früher geschrieben hätte, wären wir mit ihm nach Italien gereist.
3. Wenn wir die Kinder nicht mitgebracht hätten, wären wir länger geblieben.
4. Wenn es kalt gewesen wäre, hätte ich meinen Wintermantel mitgenommen.
5. Wenn ich die Dame gekannt hätte, hätte ich sie natürlich begrüßt.
6. Wenn wir daran gedacht hätten, hätten wir euch abgeholt.

As you recall from Lesson 41, an inverted word-order pattern is also possible for als ob clauses, with omission of ob. For example:

1. (Construction with als ob)
Herr Meyer sieht aus, als ob er krank gewesen wäre.
2. (Construction omitting ob)
Herr Meyer sieht aus, als wäre er krank gewesen.

Say complete German sentences, changing the als ob clause to a clause using inverted word order and omitting ob.

1. Sie tun, als ob sie uns nicht verstanden hätten.
2. Du tust, als ob du allein ins Kino gegangen wärest.
3. Es sieht aus, als ob unsere Nachbarn von ihrer Reise zurückgekehrt wären.
4. Ihr seht aus, als ob ihr den ganzen Tag am Strand verbracht hättet.
5. Hans tat, als ob er davon nichts gewusst hätte.
6. Die Leute sehen aus, als ob sie zu schnell gelaufen wären.

So far in this lesson, you have practiced only contrary-to-fact statements in which both the "if" clause and the "then" clause were in the past subjunctive. For example:

Wenn Vater uns das Geld geliehen hätte, hätten wir das Auto gekauft.

(If father had lent us the money, we would have bought the car.)

It is also possible to have contrary-to-fact statements with the "if" clause in the past subjunctive and the "then" clause in the present subjunctive. This pattern applies when the "if" clause refers to a contrary-to-fact state or event in the past, and the "then" clause refers to a present or future consequence. For example:

If we had left earlier (contrary-to-fact event in the past),
we would be at the airport by now (present time result).

The German equivalent of this sentence would be:

Wenn wir früher abgefahren wären (past subjunctive), wären wir jetzt schon auf dem Flugplatz (present subjunctive).

Fill in the blanks on the basis of the given English to produce a complete contrary-to-fact statement. Note that either the present or past subjunctive may be required in the "then" clause. Use the conditional with werden + infinitive of main verb, where appropriate.

1. If you hadn't spent several years in America, you wouldn't speak English so well.

Wenn Sie nicht mehrere Jahre in Amerika _____

2. If I had known that, I would have brought the children along.

Wenn ich das _____

3. If you hadn't read all night, you wouldn't be so tired now.

Wenn du nicht die ganze Nacht _____

4. If Peter and Maria had flown, they would be in Munich by now.

Wenn Peter und Maria _____

Wenn Meyers ihr Haus nicht _____

NOTES

Past Subjunctive with Modals

This is the last of five lessons on the German subjunctive mood. It continues to examine the past subjunctive introduced in lesson 43. The present lesson deals with past subjunctive constructions in which a modal auxiliary verb is used in addition to the main verb. It includes the following sections:

1. The Past Subjunctive with Modals in Contrary-to-Fact Statements.
2. Other Uses of the Past Subjunctive with Modals.

Section 1

The Past Subjunctive with Modals in Contrary-to-Fact Statements

In the preceding lesson, you worked with contrary-to-fact "if-then" statements in the past subjunctive.

Wenn Franz hier gewesen wäre, wäre er mitgekommen.

(If Franz had been here, he would have come along.)

Your task in this lesson will be to learn and practice past subjunctive constructions which contain modal auxiliaries. In terms of the present example, you will learn to form the German equivalents of sentences such as:

If Franz had been here, he would have been allowed to come along.

OR:

If Franz had been here, he would have been able to come along.

OR:

If Franz had been here, he would have wanted to come along.

In other words, you will learn to incorporate the additional "aspects of meaning" (ability, permission, volition, necessity, or obligation) which modal auxiliaries bring to the sentences in which they are used.

A more straightforward approach to analyzing past-subjunctive-with-modal constructions is to note their similarity to modal constructions in the past perfect indicative, which you studied in Lesson 38. You may remember that these are the so-called "double infinitive" constructions, in which the infinitive of the modal auxiliary is placed at the end of the sentence or clause, immediately following the infinitive of the main verb. Thus, a "double infinitive" is produced, as in the following example:

Weil Inge gegen einen Baum gefahren war, hatte sie sich ein neues Auto kaufen müssen.

(Since Inge had driven against a tree, she had had to buy herself a new car.)

Now compare a past subjunctive contrary-to-fact construction, using and transforming the above example:

Wenn Inge gegen einen Baum gefahren wäre, hätte sie sich ein neues Auto kaufen müssen.

(If Inge had driven against a tree, she would have had to buy herself a new car.)

Please remember that clauses containing a main verb + modal double-infinitive construction can only use haben as the inflected auxiliary verb [since modals are always conjugated with haben]. Thus, a past subjunctive contrary-to-fact statement without a modal and normally requiring the auxiliary sein, such as:

Wenn Franz hier gewesen wäre, wäre er mitgekommen.

(If Franz had been here, he would have come along.)

would change the auxiliary to haben in a past subjunctive contrary-to-fact statement with a modal:

Wenn Franz hier gewesen wäre, hätte er mitkommen wollen.

Listen to and repeat each of the following past subjunctive contrary-to-fact statements in which the "then" clause contains a modal.

1. Wenn ich Zeit gehabt hätte, hätte ich euch zum Bahnhof bringen können.
(If I had had time, I could have taken you to the train station.)
2. Wenn du das gewusst hättest, hättest du bestimmt nicht kommen wollen.
(If you had known that, you certainly wouldn't have wanted to come.)
3. Wenn Herr Müller Geld gebraucht hätte, hätte er sein Haus verkaufen müssen.
(If Mr. Müller had needed money, he would have had to sell his house.)

4. Wenn unsere Kinder in der Schule gewesen wären, hätten wir länger bleiben können.

(If our children had been in school, we would have been able to stay longer.)

5. Wenn ihr darum gebeten hättet, hättet ihr früher nach Hause gehen dürfen.

(If you had asked, you would have been allowed to go home earlier.)

6. Wenn sie gern mit uns ins Kino gegangen wären, hätten sie uns vorher anrufen sollen.

(If they had liked to go to the movies with us, they should have called us beforehand.)

7. Wenn Ihr Freund kein Auto gehabt hätte, hätten Sie ihn abholen müssen.

(If your friend had not had a car, you would have had to pick him up.)

8. Wenn er nicht krank gewesen wäre, hätte er nach Berlin fliegen sollen.

(If he hadn't been sick, he would have been supposed to fly to Berlin.)

The following exercise requires you to incorporate the three elements--inflected form of haben, infinitive of main verb, and infinitive of the modal auxiliary--into the "then" clause of past subjunctive sentences. Fill in the blanks so as to complete the entire "then" clause on the basis of the given English.

1. If Peter had called us, we would have been able to pick him up.

Wenn Peter uns angerufen hätte, _____ wir ihn _____.

2. If you had come home earlier yesterday, you would have been allowed to go out tonight again.

Wenn du gestern früher nach Hause gekommen wärest, _____ du heute abend wieder _____.

3. If we had sent them a present, they would have had to thank us.

Wenn wir ihnen ein Geschenk geschickt hätten, _____ sie uns _____.

4. If you had invited us, we would have wanted to come very much.

Wenn du uns eingeladen hättest, _____ wir gern _____.

5. If Hans and Inge had flown to America, they would have had to learn English beforehand.

Wenn Hans und Inge nach Amerika geflogen wären, _____ sie vorher Englisch _____.

6. If Heidi had been here, she would have wanted to go to the beach with us.

Wenn Heidi hier gewesen wäre, _____ sie mit uns an den Strand _____.

5. If Inge had been older at that time, she would have been allowed to drink wine.
Wenn Inge damals älter gewesen wäre, sie Wein
6. If it had rained, he wouldn't have wanted to leave the house.
Wenn es geregnet hätte, er nicht aus dem Haus

Past subjunctive constructions with modals can also be used in the "if" clauses of contrary-to-fact statements. For example:

Wenn Paul gestern hätte kommen können, wäre er mit uns ins Theater gegangen.

(If Paul could have come yesterday, he would have gone to the theater with us.)

Word order in the dependent "if" clause follows the pattern described in Lesson 38, where present and past perfect constructions using modal auxiliaries in dependent clauses were among the learning objectives. Here again, the inflected auxiliary haben is placed in front of the double infinitive.

Listen to and repeat the following sentences which show the past subjunctive construction with modals being used in the "if" clause. Pay special attention to word order and to the English translation.

1. Wenn ich euch Frühstück hätte machen wollen, wäre ich früher aufgestanden.
(If I had wanted to make breakfast for you, I would have gotten up earlier.)
2. Wenn sie gestern hätten arbeiten müssen, hätten sie uns nicht besucht.
(If they had had to work yesterday, they wouldn't have visited us.)
3. Wenn Peter hätte mitkommen dürfen, hätten wir uns sehr gefreut.
(If Peter had been allowed to come along, we would have been very glad.)

NOTES

4. Wenn sie den Tisch in ihrem Auto hätten mitbringen können, hätten wir sie darum gebeten.

(If they had been able to bring the table along in their car, we would have asked them to do so.)

5. Wenn Professor Schulz zu unserer Party hätte kommen wollen, hätten wir ihn eingeladen.

(If Professor Schulz had wanted to come to our party, we would have invited him.)

Fill in the blanks on the basis of the given English, incorporating the appropriate past subjunctive construction with modals in the "if" clause. Note that it is of course possible for this construction to occur in both the "if" and the "then" clause [as in the third sentence].

1. If we had been able to stay, we would have told them right away.
Wenn wir _____,
hätten wir es ihnen sofort gesagt.
2. If Anni had wanted to borrow the book, she would have asked me for it.
Wenn Anni sich das Buch _____, hätte sie mich darum gebeten.
3. If you had wanted to go to the theater, you should have bought the tickets beforehand.
Wenn ihr ins Theater _____, hättet ihr die Karten vorher kaufen sollen.
4. If I had been allowed to visit her in the hospital, I would have brought her flowers.
Wenn ich sie im Krankenhaus _____, hätte ich ihr Blumen mitgebracht.
5. If Peter could have played today, we would have won the soccer game.
Wenn Peter heute _____,

Wenn Paul auf der Party, hätten wir mehr Spass gehabt.
3. If Ingrid had been allowed to go out last Saturday, she would have made herself a new dress.
Wenn Ingrid letzten Samstag, hätte sie sich ein neues Kleid gemacht.
4. If Franz hadn't had to help his father today, he would have gone to the beach.
Wenn Franz heute seinem Vater nicht, wäre er an den Strand gegangen.

5. If we had been supposed to pick you up, someone would have told us about it.

Wenn wir euch, hätte man uns etwas davon gesagt.

6. If you had been able to come, we would have eaten together in a good restaurant.

Wenn ihr, hätten wir zusammen in einem guten Restaurant gegessen.

If the logic of the sentence so requires, the German speaker or writer may use the indicative mood in the "if" clause, together with a past subjunctive construction in the "then" clause. The indicative "if" clause can be in the imperfect, present perfect, or present tense, again depending on sentence meaning.

Say complete German sentences, supplying the appropriate past tense subjunctive construction in the "then" clause. Note the use of indicative verb forms in the "if" clause, and the English translation of the entire sentence.

1. If they were not able to come yesterday, they should have called us up.

Other Uses of the Past Subjunctive with Modals

In the preceding section, you practiced using past subjunctive constructions with modals in the context of contrary-to-fact "if-then" statements. The past subjunctive with modals can also be used in single independent clauses to describe a contrary-to-fact state or event. Some examples are as follows:

1. Sie hätte uns schreiben müssen.
(She ought to have written us.)
2. Die Kinder hätten mit uns an den Strand kommen sollen.
(The children should have come with us to the beach.)
3. Du hättest das Auto heute nachmittag waschen können.
(You could have washed the car this afternoon.)

Please note the meaning of the subjunctive modal forms in independent statements.

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English, using past subjunctive constructions with modal auxiliary verbs.

1. We ought to have thanked him.
2. Professor Schulz could have invited us.
3. The students would have been allowed to stay at home.

As you already know, the unfulfillable wish pattern is grammatically equivalent to a contrary-to-fact "if" clause. An example using the past subjunctive with modals is shown below:

Wenn wir nur etwas länger hätten bleiben können!

(If only we had been able to stay a bit longer!)

Say complete German sentences on the basis of the given English, using the past subjunctive with modals to express an unfulfillable wish.

1. If only Peter had wanted to come along!

2. If only we had been allowed to watch the movie!
(use sich ansehen)

3. If I only hadn't had to work last night!

4. If Franz and Inge had only been able to stay longer!

5. If someone (use jemand) had only wanted to buy these old books!

Past subjunctive constructions with modals can also be used following als ob ("as though"). Where would the inflected verb be placed in a past subjunctive construction following als ob?

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. Wir hätten früher nach Hause gehen sollen.

2. Ich hätte ihn anrufen müssen.

3. Peter hätte uns schreiben können.

4. Ich hätte gern bleiben wollen.

5. Wir hätten Hans abholen können.

6. Du hättest mich fragen sollen.

7. Die Kinder hätten im Park spielen dürfen.

The inflected verb (i.e., the appropriate subjunctive form of haben) is placed immediately before the double infinitive, as shown in the following example:

Es sieht aus, als ob Herr Meyer am Sonntag an den Strand hätte gehen wollen.

(It appears as though Mr. Meyer had wanted to go to the beach on Sunday.)

NOTES

Fill in the blanks on the basis of the given English.

1. Ingrid talked as though she hadn't been allowed to go out.

6. They acted as though they had not wanted to eat in an expensive restaurant.

Sie taten, als ob _____

TURN THE PAGE AND CHECK YOUR ANSWERS.

In Lesson 18 you learned that the verbs lassen and sich lassen can be used in the same way as modal auxiliary verbs to express the idea of:

a) permitting someone to do something

OR:

b) having someone do something

Examples reflecting these two meanings are first given for the non-reflexive verb lassen:

1. Wenn es nicht so kalt gewesen wäre, hätten wir die Kinder ins Wasser gehen lassen.

(If it had not been so cold, we would have permitted the children to go into the water.)

2. Wenn es nicht so teuer gewesen wäre, hätten wir das Dach reparieren lassen.

(If it hadn't been so expensive, we would have had the roof repaired.)

The reflexive sich lassen can have either of these two meanings, but in addition, use of the reflexive form indicates that the action of the sentence is in some sense directed back at the subject:

1. Wenn Franz Inge darum gebeten hätte, hätte sie sich von ihm zu einer Party einladen lassen.

(If Franz had asked Inge, she would have allowed him to invite her to a party.)

2. Wenn wir genug Geld gehabt hätten, hätten wir uns ein Haus bauen lassen.

(If we had had enough money, we would have had a house built for ourselves.)

In each of the above example sentences, where does the infinitive form lassen appear?

If you made any mistakes, write the correct German.

1. sie nicht hätte ausgehen dürfen.

2. Müllers uns hätten besuchen wollen.

3. er den ganzen Tag hätte arbeiten müssen.

4. wir sie hätten abholen sollen.

5. er ein teureres Auto hätte kaufen können.

6. sie nicht in einem teuren Restaurant hätten essen wollen.
